Dispute Resolution: Litigation and Arbitration

Piero Curi is a lawyer from Pontificia Universidad Católica del Perú, with a specialization in Procedural Law from the same institution and in International and Investment Arbitration from Universidad del Pacífico. He focuses on resolving disputes in commercial, civil, and administrative litigation, as well as in domestic arbitration involving PPPs, administrative disputes, and infrastructure, transportation, and telecommunications projects. His practice combines the representation of clients in complex judicial and arbitral proceedings with the design of defense strategies in key economic sectors.

Experience

Piero has built his professional career in litigation and arbitration, representing clients in civil, commercial, and administrative disputes across sectors such as telecommunications, education, municipal law, consumer protection, and data privacy.

He has advised and represented clients in complex domestic arbitrations related to PPPs, as well as in administrative disputes. He also has experience in annulment and enforcement proceedings of arbitral awards, recognition of foreign awards, and constitutional remedies related to arbitration.
