Labor and Employment

Bernardo Pérez-Navas is an expert in labor and Social Security law. He specializes in legal advice on collective dismissal and collective bargaining processes. He also has valuable experience in the other facets of labor law, highlighting labor advice in national and international corporate transactions, advice on legal proceedings, labor and Social Security advice on complex remuneration systems, advice on managers and on expatriation or international movements of workers. He is a regular speaker at different forums, seminars and higher education programs and collaborates with multiple media. He holds a degree in Law, a degree in Psychology and a Master's degree in Human Resources from the Universidad Pontificia Comillas.

Experience

Partner of the Labor Department since 2012, Senior Associate since 2006, he joined the firm in 2000.

Bernardo specializes in legal advice on collective dismissal and collective bargaining processes, having successfully led the advice in the negotiation of some of the most complex and impactful labor restructuring processes in Spain in recent years.

He also has extensive experience in the other facets of labor law, highlighting labor advice in national and international corporate operations (mergers, spin-offs and contributions of branches of activity, outsourcing processes or outsourcing of services, etc.), defense in legal proceedings, labor and Social Security advice in complex remuneration systems, recruitment of managerial and senior management staff and in matters of expatriation or international movements of workers.

His clients are mainly Spanish and foreign multinational companies from the most diverse sectors: metal industry, food, consulting, technology, banking and finance or luxury sector among others, which allows, without prejudice to a specialization in each of these sectors, a broad vision of the business spectrum.

Languages: English and French.
